BLACK LIVES MATTER

Dear friends,

Food is history. Food has flourished in times of prosperity and adapted to endure famine. Food travels. Crosses continents and oceans. Food evolves. Grotesque, trendy, beautiful, poetic, humble. Food has been the investment of billionaires who financially fuel fascist regimes. Food has been a peace offering. Food is a story. Passed down, interpreted, stolen, and reclaimed through families and generations. Food embodies resilience. Food is political.

You will notice our Black Lives Matter feature in our new menu. We believe that silence is a form of violence and want to acknowledge our support for the Black Lives Matter movement, our Black community, and the dismantling of white supremacy in all forms, especially police brutality.

We are sharing the following resources on the back of our menu for our XLB community, in hopes that you will learn, take action, educate, and support the liberation of all Black people, now and forever.

To our non-Black patrons

Remember: if you don't know where to begin because you don't "have all the answers"--- that's okay. Just begin. Donate. Read. Listen. This is the time to act, engage, and learn from mistakes. In the words of activist Angela Davis:

In a racist society, it is not enough to be non-racist. We must be anti-racist.

Continuing Education / Conversation

One of the most important things we can do is to talk to our non-Black family and friends about racism. These conversations can be (and should be) uncomfortable, but that's because we are challenging our beliefs and assumptions.

The following google doc contains books, podcasts, articles, books for kids, videos, films, television, organizations to support & follow on social media, and additional resources for anti-racism work. Check it out, share it with your friends & family, and practice a sustainable self-education so your activism work will be life-long.
